

Junckers

Junckers solid oak flooring has been chosen for Bethlem Royal Hospital's Museum of the Mind, which has recently opened to the public after extensive renovation works. The understated interior scheme features Junckers Wide Board Oak flooring and white surfaces to act as a backdrop to the museum's permanent collection of treatment methods and implements. Hardwearing and easy to maintain, Junckers solid-wood floors are ideal for public spaces, even in high-traffic areas. The 20.5mm-thick planks can be sanded and re-finished several times, giving the floor a virtually limitless lifespan.

www.junckers.co.uk

Nina Cho Design

Nina Cho is an artist and designer living in Detroit. In continuation of her research into planar materials, Nina Cho refined a single broad bend in creating the shell for a chair. Cutting a pie shape away from a circle and curving it to connect the edges creates the three-dimensional chair shell. The wide seat invites users to have freedom with their posture, and the long line of the outside curve functions as an armrest. The form of the legs echoes the chair shell's perimeter.

www.ninacho.com

DuPont Corian

DuPont Corian has launched new colours based on its proprietary manufacturing process, DeepColour Technology. The two new greys – Deep Titanium and Deep Cloud – offer enhanced options for interior design. Deep Titanium is a dramatic dark grey that echoes the rich lustre of its metal namesake. Strong and solid, it brings a contemporary dimension and an understated elegance to any setting. Deep Cloud is a moody, lighter grey that brings to mind a stormy night sky. A versatile hue, it can be minimalist in application or lend a classic elegance when combined with other colours. The new colours are available from June 2015.

www.corian.co.uk

Modus

Developed for Modus by PearsonLloyd, Edge is a new table system that spans the divide between independent table and full desking systems. With complete flexibility of function, Edge has an unburdened and refined aesthetic and fulfils the mixed demands of both the modern workplace and hospitality interiors. Manufactured from aluminium with a choice of tabletops, Edge is available in a range of colours with coordinating accessories to suit any scheme.

www.modusfurniture.co.uk